Greetings,

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I welcome you to the Partnership’s 2019 Management and Leadership Training Conference. It seems like the excitement and anticipation around this conference has been building with each passing year. As such, we want to ensure that we provide you with the most valuable and engaging experience possible here in New Orleans. Therefore, we’ve outlined a program based widely on your inquiry and feedback, and I’m confident you will fly home feeling edified and reenergized in our shared vision of equity and opportunity for all.

Many of you have asked that we enhance our focus on advocacy. So, this year, we’re excited to offer an array of sessions that address public policy issues related to topics such as immigration and equity. Additionally, we’ve invited Alliance for Justice to provide training on how to wisely and effectively launch an advocacy campaign that inspires lasting, meaningful change.

We’ve also continued to strengthen our emphasis on communications, per your request. You’ll be pleased to see that this year we have several in-depth training workshops that cover branding, messaging, framing, and storytelling, so that you can convey the efforts and accomplishments of your agency or association in a way that is both impactful and intentional.

No matter your position or area of interest, you will find ample opportunity to learn, network, and connect with friends and colleagues. So please, take advantage of our tools, resources, and training sessions. Bring your enthusiasm, bring an open mind, and be prepared to put your newfound knowledge into action as a Voice for Change! We hope you enjoy your experience.

Sincerely,

Bryan Duncan, CCAP
NCAP Board Chair
Community Action Friends and Colleagues,

Welcome to Community Action Partnership’s 2019 Management and Leadership Training Conference in New Orleans, Louisiana. We’re excited to unveil this year’s theme, Community Action: A Voice for Change. As we all know, change can be powerful. It can even uplift or renew the human spirit. But it can also be destructive, as we saw in 2018 – which brought with it violence, natural disaster, and unrest. That’s why this year we want to facilitate a space for Community Action to envision and enact our own kind of change – the kind that inspires hope, helps heal our divided society, and provides an opportunity for everyone to succeed. With that in mind, Dr. Gail Christopher, social change agent and former Senior Advisor and Vice President of the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, will offer keynote remarks to guide us in taking steps to change harmful narratives about race.

Another change we want to address is the budding shift in national dialogue, as issues of sexual assault and gender equity have been brought to the forefront, with calls for accountability, respect, and common decency. To that end, we thought it apropos to offer workshops that better equip network leaders to engage and understand gender-informed issues such as gender bias and workplace harassment.

In spite of our theme, however, we assure you that we’re staying true to what you’ve come to expect and appreciate about the conference. Every year, we pride ourselves on providing learning experiences that cover the most effective, leading-edge practices – from energy partnerships, to whole family approaches to customer-care – as well as opportunities for peer-to-peer dialogue, networking, and intensive, evidence-based training workshops for Community Action leaders in areas such as: organizational standards, leadership development, strategic planning, risk management, fundraising and sustainability, and financial oversight.

We hope that you find our program to be useful, informative, and rejuvenating. We’ve been working hard with you in mind, because we know how incredibly vital your work is to so many folks in communities all across the country. Most of all, we hope this year’s convention inspires you the way that all of you inspire us every day with your generosity, courage, and resilience.

Welcome to New Orleans. Thanks for being with us.

Denise L. Harlow, MSW, CCAP, NCRT
Partnership Chief Executive Officer
Dear Friends,

It is my absolute pleasure as the Mayor of the City of New Orleans to welcome you to the Community Action Partnership’s 2019 Management and Leadership Training Conference.

The Community Action Partnership’s mission is an admirable one. Addressing the causes of poverty and connecting people to opportunity are two issues dear to my heart. To successfully address the issues, our approach must be multi-faceted and holistic. Here in New Orleans, as part of our holistic approach, we are working to expand opportunity.

I urge each of you to embrace this opportunity to listen, ask questions and network with your peers. Let the Community Action Partnership community empower you so that you can continue to change lives in local communities.

During your visit, explore New Orleans and enjoy the unique experiences the city has to offer. New Orleans overflows with culture. I encourage each of you to treat yourself to our world-famous cuisine, dance to our live, local music and visit our exceptional cultural institutions such as the National World War II Museum, the New Orleans Museum of Art and the Ashé Cultural Arts Center. The energy of our city is unmatched and the magic unparalleled. We invite you to experience every moment of it.

Thank you for visiting New Orleans. I wish you success in all of your endeavors to make America a better place for all people to live.

Sincerely,

LaToya Cantrell
Mayor
City of New Orleans

Our nation is moving toward two societies, one black, one white – separate and unequal.

During the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson, this was one of the key findings of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, which was called the Kerner Commission after its chairman, Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois. Fifty years later, the Kerner Commission has released an update to its initial report titled, Healing Our Divided Society. The report finds that racial equity has gotten worse. Additionally, the percentage of Americans living in extreme poverty — that is, living on less than half the poverty threshold — has increased since the 1970s. During this session panelists will discuss the findings of the most recent report and Community Action’s continued role in increasing equity and creating pathways to opportunity.

Messaging and Framing | Magnolia III | 3rd Floor

How do you craft effective messages that persuade your audiences to volunteer, donate, or support your cause? To be effective, messages should take into account that people are not blank slates. Existing values, beliefs, and perceptions mean your audience will hear your message within their preconceived frames – the subconscious story reel they play in their head on any given issue. This hands-on session will share the fundamentals of framing and messaging. It will include practical tips for developing tailored messaging, time to draft messages, and real-time feedback from the presenter.

Taking Action on the Determinants of Health to Cultivate Resilience and Systems Change

The determinants and conditions in which people are born, grow, live, work, and play are critical to establishing a trauma informed system that produces positive health outcomes. Medical care is only one piece of health. UCSF Benioff Children's Hospital in Oakland, CA works with families to address the determinants of health and cultivate resilience in a comprehensive way through appropriate screening, interventions, evaluation, collaboration, and systems change. Join this session to learn how this approach can be adapted to a community-based organization, like Community Action. Participants will develop a multi-level action plan for improving service delivery and developing partnerships to address the determinants of health and trauma, and cultivate resilience at the local level.

Managing Coordinated Energy Programs

Weatherization Subgrantees are encouraged to leverage the WAP in order to attract non-federal funding and coordinate programs for greater impact. Program and fiscal management of LIHEAP, WAP, and Non-Federal funding can be a challenge, and it is important for all levels of management and leadership in the organization to understand best practices. This panel will provide insight on the importance of coordinating programs and strategies for managing these funds and requirements to ensure successfully coordinated program delivery.

The Board's Role in Financial Oversight

Financial oversight of a multi-million dollar Community Action Agency can be daunting for a volunteer board member, but it is a critical function that the public expects board members to understand and accept. While we cannot all be financial experts (and there is no expectation that you are an expert) this session will give board members understanding of the financial reporting they receive/should receive, clarity on the role of treasurer and the finance committee/audit committee, as well as increased insight into the agency’s annual audit process and report.

How is ROMA Implemented in a Community Action Agency?

With the universal adoption of the Organizational Standards, a renewed commitment to the principles and practices related to Results Oriented Management and Accountability (ROMA) has been acknowledged by the network. But how do the agency documents identify that the implementation of the full ROMA Cycle is occurring in the agency? Even more important, how is ROMA implementation connected to the overall agency functioning (including assuring Organizational Standards are met and the agency is operating with high quality)? The Partnership is developing a tool kit for local agencies to use as they consider including ROMA in their existing work, including identifying the role of the Certified ROMA Implementer as well as roles of others throughout the agency. Participants at this session will work through some of the proposed activities and will be asked to comment on the toolkit and provide input on the product.

The Community Initiative Status Form (CIS) is the entry form for Community Action Agencies reporting community level in Module 3 of the CSBG Annual Report. The CIS is new to the reporting process for FY18 and can, if used effectively, assist the network in telling the story of our community level work. This session will cover the elements of community level initiatives, as well as how the CIS is only as a reporting requirement, but can be utilized as a planning and diagnostic tool during the creation of a community initiative. In addition, agencies will have an opportunity to utilize a recently developed assessment checklist to evaluate CIS examples.

Putting Words into Action: Board Roles and Responsibilities in Practice Azalea II | 3rd Floor

A Community Action Agency is only as effective and impactful as its leadership. It is crucial that the board of directors not only understand what is expected of it but also what decisions and actions it needs to take to meet and exceed those expectations. How can board members go from simply receiving information to asking the right questions to ensure optimal transparency and accountability? In this session we will use scenarios to discuss the role of a Community Action Agency board and explore how a board works collaboratively to fulfill its oversight function. Topics will include the key board responsibilities, nonprofit CAA board members’ fiduciary duties, and the relationship of the executive director and the board, including the board chair.

Co-facilitated by two experienced racial healing circle practitioners who have been working with Dr. Gail Christopher for over a decade, this session will provide participants with an introduction to the racial healing circle methodology. Racial healing circles are designed to focus on the sharing of stories that affirm our common humanity. They are designed to take participants into the heart space by inviting people to tell their own stories, to listen deeply to the stories of others, to find common ground and to embrace our common humanity when we see ourselves in the perceived other. When this occurs, we build the trust that is necessary for courageous dialogue and the transformation of hearts and minds that shows up in what we say and do. Racial Healing Circles have proven to be a useful tool for having difficult conversations about life experiences, perceived differences and creating opportunities for diverse groups of peoples to connect deeply.

Community action agencies share a commitment to equity, compassion and fair treatment. In order to build healthy environments at agencies, it is up to leaders to recognize that people are their greatest asset and to embrace the responsibility to create workplaces that are respectful, supportive and safe. Ensuring these values are present in your organization is important to helping prevent workplace harassment from arising. Attend this session to hear from a thought leader on the impact that culture plays in these situations. You’ll also learn what steps your organization can and must take to reduce harassing behaviors, ensure that every employee is part of the solution, and respond appropriately and compassionately when concerns and complaints arise.

Leadership Development for the Next Generation

As a young professional, you may think you can't lead or advance because of your youth or short tenure in your company. Think again. Young professionals may not bring years of experience to a company, but they bring energy, exuberance, a fresh education and knowledge of new technologies that others in the company may not have. They also bring a fresh perspective -- a new look at old problems.

As a young professional, you can still be a leader even if you’re not in a position of power. In fact, if you exercise your leadership skills as a young professional, your road to a more desirable position can be much shorter. During this session panelist will discuss the essentials of effective leadership for greater success, faster.

The Importance and process of creating a Personal Brand will also be discussed.

Storytelling for Good

Stories can be powerful communications tools. They can bring an organization’s impact to life, shape public perception of your clients, and influence how political leaders and donors view the urgency of your work. But are you using this tool effectively – and ethically? In this session you will learn how to craft a compelling story, following the tried-and-true storytelling formula that’s been used from Beowulf to the Wizard of Oz to Black Panther. We will also spend time reviewing ethical considerations, so your organization’s storytelling can both strengthen your cause and empower your clients, without inadvertently advancing harmful stereotypes.
